Some Solutions to the Problem

1. Normalize these feelings
2. Reframe your thinking
3. Track your success
4. Value your self-care. Strength in community
5. Don’t let it stop you

1) Write down an accomplishment with an explanation on how it was accomplished:
   • For example: I become an adjunct professor at Syracuse University because I worked hard, was disciplined, and my advisor knew I needed a job.

2) Reflect on the experience
   • Questions to Ask: Did everyone work hard? Weren’t other members of my cohort teacher assisting? Was it purely based on my work ethic?
   • What skills did I demonstrate to get the position?

3) Reframe the accomplishment
   • For example: I become an adjunct professor at Syracuse University because I am a good teacher.
Private Questions to ask yourself

I. What core beliefs do I hold about myself?
II. What core beliefs do you believe others have for you?
III. Do I believe I am worthy of love as I am?
IV. How have others tested, discouraged, or undermined my self worth?
V. Must I be perfect for others to approve of me?
